

Resolutions of 2nd World Youth Conference, 1999

1. Make the 9-point Code of Conduct a guide for life.
2. To try by thought, word and deed to be ideal examples for other youth to follow.
3. To bring all members of their families together for weekly sessions of spiritual togetherness – following their own respective cultures and traditions.
4. In responding to Sai's call for the youth, that "Youth Alone Can Transform Youth", the Sai youth will undertake the following:
 - i. In every country where Sai youth exist, they will undertake one project of significant benefit for welfare of society and especially for youth. One significant example would be to adopt at least one village or depressed, high rise slum area in an urban environment. Responding to Sai's call on September 1999 that "I want you to become ideal leaders, make use of your education to serve the poor...conduct free tuition classes", the Sai youth pledge to set up free tuition classes for poor children. If this programme is properly planned and launched at the birth of the new millennium, we will have by November 2000, Bhagavan's 75th birthday, hundreds of thousands of children and youth around the world benefiting from "Sathya Sai Tuition Centers".
 - ii. In response to the needs of modern education and the work environment, the Sai youth will also set up at least one "Sathya Sai Computer Education Center" in every city for the children of the poor.

The Sai youth will be teaching other children and youth not only how to use computers but also Human Values. They will thus try to transform the youth of urban and rural poor – into not only users of computers but also into "composers" as desired by Swami.
5. The youth in each zone will get together annually in one of the poorer areas in their zones for Sai Spiritual Camps – where they will at the end of the Camp, leave behind in the area a permanent legacy of Sai Love in the form of a Sathya Sai Children's Playground, a Sathya Sai Children's Library or any such project that will have sustainable impact and benefit for the poor children and youth in the area.
6. In fulfilling the above projects, the Sai youth will carry the torch of Sai through love, sacrifice and service around the world. They will also leave permanent legacies of education and human welfare for the benefit of society."
